

Hero

Cyrus Derek Edwin

She was inseparable from the memories of her lover. He had forsaken her but that did not render the memory superfluous. She was helpless, vulnerable and devastated, but not willing to suffer anymore. She had her mind and heart duelling and raging a war within, fought with herself and for herself and chose to bear difficulties no more. She wanted to be able to love again. Love herself, and not only herself but the one who had the face of her betrayer, the one who was blooming in her body as his child.

It perhaps commanded some sort of superpower to make this happen, though she didn't seem capable of such strength. She neither had an 'S' embroidered on her chest nor a cape hanging down her shoulders. But does every superhero have such an outfit?